

MISSION STATEMENT OF THE ZUG VET NETWORK

- The Zug VET Network (ZVN) is an autonomous and operationally independent organization, which seeks to enable young people to successfully complete their vocational education and training within the network.
- The ZVN is organized and structured as an association, with all of the attendant rights and obligations. In carrying out its activities, it also complies with the relevant standards and regulations that apply to associations (Swiss Code of Obligations, Swiss Civil Code).
- In terms of goals and objectives, the ZVN aligns itself with the free market both in the selection of occupations for which it offers apprenticeship options within its network and also in relation to the young apprentices that it supports for the duration of their VET programs.
- The ZVN attaches great importance to ethical behavior in all matters, to respect for the dignity of each individual with whom it comes into contact on a daily basis, and to the protection of the privacy and personal rights of all those for whom it assumes responsibility.
- The ZVN pursues its own course in the context of the economic opportunities and resources open to it. It may collaborate with other organizations if it would be useful and feasible to do so from the point of view of achieving its objectives.
- As a non-profit organization, the ZVN exercises every care in allocating and handling any financial resources provided to it.
